CLEAR HEALTH BILL.

In his report just submitted to Governor Dix following an investigation into the work of the public service commission for the metropolitan district John N. Carlisle of Watertown, the governor's special commissioner, gives the commission a "clear bill of health," as it were, although expressing some surprise that nobody—not even one of the public-service corporations of the city—came forward at his invitation to lodge complaints against the commission for any of its possible sins of commission or sins of omission and that no criticism of its operation or policies found its way to him; if it has any critics, they discretely kept themselves in the background. As all the world knows, Governor Hughes conceived the idea of supplanting the old Rapid-Transit commission with a new body having enlarged powers for the chief purpose of relieving the congestion of street travel in this town and providing real rapid transit for it; the new commission has been in office for four years lacking just one month—but with no extension of real rapid-transit as yet.

Commissioner Carlisle refuses, however, to lay the responsibility for this failure of rapid transit to materialize at the door of the commission. "The public as a rule," he says, "has placed the blame for the delays upon the public-service commission. It must be remembered that the commission, while it has the initiative duty and power to lay out subway routes, yet is as a matter of fact absolutely subject to the control of the board of estimate and apportionment, because that board has the final power of approving contracts and furnishing the funds."

This does not "put up" to the board of estimate in so many words the responsibility for the long delay in subway extension, but it comes pretty close to doing it. And the special commissioner of Governor Dix intimates very strongly that there is no excuse for the delay. "There are so many diversified interests to be satisfied," he says, "and such financial gains to be secured and so many arguments advanced for and against any proposition that the subway problem has been looked upon as intricate and complex. As a matter of fact it is quite simple and easily solved."

It may be remarked in passing that Commissioner Carlisle is the only man who has come to regard the subway problem as "simple and easily solved." He doesn't offer his scheme of solution—but if he really has one, the city of New York ought to secure it from him without delay; and if it is "the real thing," almost any price for it would be reasonable. The Watertown man has a grand opportunity to immortalize himself by presenting his "solution" to the city on a gold plate with his compliments.

Score one for the Taft administration. At last the Russian government has rescinded the rule prohibiting Americans of the Jewish race from entering the Russian empire. An imperial receipt has been issued announcing that Americans of the Hebrew race can visit Russia on business errands and be free to travel about under passport protection without molestation. This is a victory for freedom of intercourse gained over prejudice and bigotry. American Jews can hereafter visit Russia without disguising their race and religion, can have their passports vided by the Russian and American consuls so that they need have no fear of being jailed or expelled from the country. They can now go openly and freely where they have heretofore been forbidden to set foot. It is an evidence that the world is growing more enlightened.

The report that the real Ark of the Covenant, containing the original Ten Commandments, has been found by a party of English archaeologists on the site of Solomon's temple, reads as though H. Rider Haggard had become the Jerusalem correspondent.—Kansas City Times.

It must be those are not vegetarian doctors that will be "barbecued" at Pasadena late this month. Twenty-five heaves, and 200 tubs of lobster salad is more suggestive of the stomach-ache than a physician's feed.

The American who is looking for proofs that Bacon wrote the Shakespeare plays has dug up the bottom of a river in England. Even if he contributes nothing to literature, he may help navigation.—Washington Star.

However, it is some comfort to know that none of the dramasmiths have yet turned out a musical comedy based on the Camorrist trial.

BRYAN ON RAW WOOL.

In the current issue of his Commoner a demand for free raw wool is made by Colonel Bryan, and those democrats in congress who oppose the proposal are set down by him as out-and-out protectionists who "are ashamed to say that they favor protection." Chairman Underwood of the ways-and-means committee represents the attack as unfair to the committee majority and to the democrats who will support its tariff-revision bill. The committee discovered, he explains, that it could increase the amount of revenue by reducing the duties on manufactured wool, but that it could not increase the revenue sufficiently to make up the $21,000,000 a year paid on raw-wool imports. "So the committee determined," he says, "that it was necessary to levy a small tax on raw wool to make up the deficiency in revenue and to make the schedule pay the $40,000,000 now collected under it at the customs houses. There is $20,000,000 collected from manufactured and $21,000,000 from unmanufactured wool." The discussion is not wholly uninteresting but is largely academic since the chances of the senate passing the proposed house bill are infinitesimal. The interest centers not so much on the provision of the bill itself as on the question of whether or not the democratic house of representatives will follow the lead of the Nebraskan in this matter. It must be said of him that he is consistent—for he voted for the free-raw-wool provision of the Wilson-Gorman bill and for its manufactured-wool schedules when it was a member of the house.

He might be reminded, however, that the wool-and-woolens experiment in that measure proved to be a most disastrous venture. The volume of raw-wool importations was trebled by it and the quantity of woolen manufactures were more than doubled, yet the revenue from these imports was cut almost squarely in two; free wool did not effect an increase in the exportation of woolen manufactures, as had been predicted for it, but importations of shoddy were greatly increased; and both the wool-growing and the wool-manufacturing industries here in the United States were sorely depressed throughout the years between the enactment of the free-wool bill and the passage of the Dingley law in 1907. It is not easily believable that even anti-protectionist democrats as a general thing want to experiment with free wool again.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

The high school of Kansas and the country are doing more to increase class distinction in the United States than in making men and women who are worth while, according to E. T. Fairchild, state superintendent of public instruction of Kansas.

The lack of vocational training in the high schools is responsible for the condition, in Mr. Fairchild's opinion. There is too much culture and too little of the training that tends to make boys and girls appreciate the dignity of labor.

"Culture studies are all right," Mr. Fairchild said, "and they should be required in every high school as an incentive to better things, but vocational training is just as important. Under present conditions the boys and girls in high schools are being taught that it is better to have culture than to know the things that are good in the ordinary walks of life, such as the manual training and domestic science."

"This is building up class distinction and snobbish ideas. After a boy has taken a course in manual training, I know that he is not going to look with disdain upon the blacksmith who makes an excellent weld, or the carpenter who does a good job of joinery. He appreciates the workman's skill and has a respect for the man who possesses that skill by which he makes a living for himself, his wife and his babies."

It beats the world how little it takes to get our democratic friends enthused. Back in Minnesota they are still celebrating the "victories of last November." Probably because they expect to win no more.

"This country is in the grip of a small group of bankers," says one of their number in an interview. The confession is not startling in the circumstances. He was on his way to the penitentiary.

Congress should also investigate that deficit the postmaster general wiped out in two years without any increase in rates. Such things ought not to be tolerated.—Wall Street Journal.

After the Lorimer case has been probed, turned over, disinterred, aired and stirred up a few times more, the public may come to realize what a nauseating mess it is.

A Loyalton, Cal., bank cashier has disappeared, taking the vault combination with him. And now officials do not know whether to start the coroner or sheriff after him.

Astor sold one-half interest in the Waldorf to his son for $1, but the record do not show whether the purchaser borrowed the money from papa or a friend.

A dairymen's convention is to be held in Waterloo, Iowa. How natural that Waterloo should be selected as a place for dairymen to meet and mix!

Eighteen saloons have just closed up in Mariposa county, Arizona. The Wild West is almost tame enough now to eat out of one's hand.

The gaping ranks of blue are growing more apparent each year as the boys of '61 march to the graves of their fallen comrades.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The customs court has given a decision which promises to bring customs collectors into even more unpopularity.

Three words in one section of the Payne-Aldrich law have been construed to mean that any American-born animal once taken out of this country, must pay duty to return. It is held that the law applies to all animals from pet poodles to draft horses. Heretofore customs collectors have been allowed to exercise some discretion in enforcing this provision.

An American woman who takes her pet poodle to Europe will have to pay duty on it when she returns. Collector Loeb, at New York, has begged the treasury department to allow him to wink at the law, but has been advised that the government will allow no winks.

Many Americans who have summer homes in Canada and usually take their horses and dogs with them, will be confronted with a duty when they return.

The law has been in effect since August 5, 1909, but the customs officials have never enforced it.

STORM IN OHIO

KILLS TEN PERSONS

CLEVELAND, June 6.—Ten persons dead, many missing, scores of injured and at least $1,000,000 property loss made the trail left by a five minute storm that ripped and tore its way through the northern half of Ohio yesterday.

Cleveland lay helpless under the trail of a 60-mile gale that scattered the shipping in the harbor, took buildings with it in its fury and twisted giant trees from their roots.

Seven were drowned in Lake Erie, off the Cleveland shore, as the storm caught fishermen unawares and periled the lives of yachtsmen and other people on the water. Three were drowned at Lorain.

25,000 BIBLES SENT

TO SAN FRANCISCO

NEW YORK, June 6.—The National Gideon society yesterday shipped 25,000 Bibles to San Francisco, over the Lackawanna, via the Northwestern at Chicago, and then in turn to the Union Pacific. This society is the official organization of the Christian Traveling Men's Association of America, which has for its object the placing of a Bible in every room of every hotel in America. The triennial session of the International Sunday School association meets this year in San Francisco, and during the session the Bibles are to be piled on the convention platform in the form of a pyramid. After adjournment the Gideons will place them in the different rooms of the hotels.
